STREET GOSSIP ABOUT TOWN

"Remember the other day about you telling me that there was an eligible list from which a man could be selected to succeed Sergeant Murray on the police force," said the friend to the street corner politician.

"Yes, I remember saying something about it," confessed the politician, "why?"

"Nothing, only I was wondering if there was any change in the situation," said the friend.

"Not that I know of," replied the politician, "but you will remember that I did not state as a positive fact that the police board would use the eligible list that is said to be in existence."

"No, I know you didn't," replied the friend.

"From what I hear," continued the politician, "it is likely that the civil service board will probably call an examination to make up a new list."

"How is that?" asked the friend.

"Why it seems that ten of the members of the police force have never had an opportunity of trying an examination for sergeant," explained the politician.

"What has that got to do with it?" the friend wanted to know.

"Under the civil service rules," explained the politician, "all of the force who have served six months are eligible to take an examination if it is called."

"Yes," said the friend.

"And that means that every officer of the force is eligible to take the examination if held?" said the politician.

"Well are they going to call for a new examination?" asked the friend.

"Only those on the inside seem to know," replied the politician.

"Well if they are they will have to do it pretty soon won't they?" asked the friend.

"Yes if they intend making an appointment at the next meeting of the police board," remarked the politician.

"When is that?" asked the friend.

"Early next month," replied the politician.

"What do you think about the Taxpayers' Association wanting a man appointed from the ranks of the office to fill the vacancy, and then not appointing another member on the police force?" asked the friend.

"Well on the first proposition," reported the politician thoughtfully, "I am in favor of it and think the members of the force should be given first opportunity to fill the job of sergeant provided they are capable and there are some men on the force who would make good I think."

"Yes, I guess you are right there," said the friend.

the church-theater proposition," said the politician with a smile, "I will take the matter under consideration."

So firmly has the fact been impressed upon the mind of the conductors on the local trolley cars that every fare must be rung up that often many amusing incidents occur. Shortly before Christmas a well known man about town entered a car in charge of one of the popular conductors on the Kingston City Division.

With a hearty, "Hello Jack," the fare reached down deep into his pocket and produced five clear Havana cigars which he handed to the conductor.

Now the usual place for a conductor or motorman to put smoking articles while on duty is in the crown of the stiff caps which they wear but this time something went wrong for the popular conductor reached up and pulled the cord of the fare register five times, registering up five journeys for the company, and serenely went on down the car whistling and collecting the other fares. Not until some time later did he discover that the Christmas cigars had been rung up to the credit of the company. What the company did with the cigars, if it got them is not told by the many friends who are telling the "story" about their fellow workman, but the cigars were probably smoked during the evening while the conductor was off duty.

SCOTCH WAYS WITH MUTTON.

The quality of mutton greatly depends upon the way it has been fed. For roasting, mutton can hardly be too long hung. The length of time depends upon the weather. In cold, dry weather, in an airy, well-kept larder, 21 days is not too long; in damp weather it will not keep half that long.

Mutton is seasonable all the year round, and those who know say that mutton should be five years old to be in its prime. However, two years is the limit of life for most sheep.

Boiled Mutton and Sauce.—Prepare the meat by wiping it with a damp cloth; if the skin be discolored, scrape it with a knife. Good meat should be red in color, elastic to the touch, and have a fresh smell. The fat should be white and hard. Allow twenty minutes to the pound in boiling and an additional twenty minutes for all joints over three pounds. Plunge the meat, outside down, into boiling water to sear it; after that cover and let it simmer for the rest of the time. Prepare a carrot and turnip and put them with the meat, then add an onion.

Sauce for Mutton.—Take two tablespoonfuls each of flour and dripping, cook until smooth, then add a pint of the mutton liquor, a little milk, if liked, and some chopped parsley. Chopped capers, a tablespoonful with a little of the vinegar to a pint of the sauce. Lay the mutton on a platter, pour the sauce over it, and garnish with the vegetables may be placed neatly at the end of the dish; the onion may be left out if so desired.

Mutton Stew.—Wipe a piece of the neck or a cheap cut from the shoulder and cut into serving-sized pieces. Place in a frying pan with a little hot dripping, turn and brown on all sides, dredge with flour, add a pint of shredded carrots, cut in strips, not slices, an onion and sufficient hot water to cook well, leaving a sauce to serve poured over the meat and vegetables. Set into a fireless cooker and let stand for three hours or simmer on the back part of the stove for two hours. A little meat in such a dish will season a quantity of vegetables, making a most wholesome and economical dish. Potatoes may be added if desired.

UNFROCKED PASTOR IS UNDER ARREST

The Rev. Arthur Worthington's Long Career of Crime Ended in His Apprehension in Soldiers' Home at Hampton, Virginia—His Orange County Swindles.

A fugitive from justice for two and one-half months following his unfrockment and excommunication from the Presbyterian Church in America following sensational disclosures made before a commission of the North River Presbytery in Poughkeepsie, October 26, last, Rev. Arthur Worthington, former pastor of the Presbyterian Church in New Hamburg, whose correct name is Samuel Oakley Crawford, a native of Saucereus, was arrested Thursday evening in the National Soldiers' Home in Hampton, Virginia.

Charles H. Curtis, sheriff of Elizabeth City County, made the arrest acting upon instructions from Henry Hirschberg, district attorney of Orange county, where, as in Dutchess county, indictments have been handed down charging the bogus minister with grand larceny. Worthington admitted his identity, told Sheriff Sheel he would not fight any extradition proceedings, and in consequence Chief of Police Brown, of Newburgh, is now in Hampton to bring Worthington back to Orange county for trial.

From the time when Worthington left Poughkeepsie early in October upon learning that his career was under investigation by the church commission, he wandered over the country from Bath, N. Y., to Johnson, Tenn., and from there to Hampton, Va., where he was located, identified and arrested. Worthington was traced from Poughkeepsie to Bath by deputies under the direction of District Attorney Raymond E. Aldrich following Worthington's indictment by a grand jury in Dutchess county charging him with grand larceny.

It is the district attorney's belief that Worthington, under some other name, of course, planned to attend the "secure" admission to the Soldiers' Home in Bath but became alarmed and disappeared and became for Johnson City, Tenn., to enter a soldier's home there. Transportation had been provided him by the officials of the home in Bath and in Johnson City he was received into the soldier's home there, from whence he went to Virginia. Admission to the National Soldiers' Home in Hampton under his correct name of Samuel Oakley Crawford, he gained on the strength of his honorable discharge from the Union Army in the Civil War in which he served several months as an orderly. Whether or not Worthington under the name of Green married his 10th wife in New Britain, Del., since his departure from Poughkeepsie has not been established by Worthington's testimony as yet.

The Orange County Charge.
The charge against Worthington contained in the indictment held against him in Orange county is that he obtained $225 from the Rev. F. J. Stanley of Newburgh, who the Rev. F. J. Stanley took up the residence after years spent in the mission fields of China during which time they had saved about $1,400. Worthington, it is alleged, represented to the Stanleys that he desired the money as a loan and that he would repay it when he received the large bequest he said was due him from the estate of his aunt Helen Russell, which was then in the chancery court of New Jersey. No such estate ever existed, investigation disclosed. While Worthington is indicted in Dutchess county charged with having secured money falsely from B. P. Wayne, a director of the Poughkeepsie Trust Company and prominent in the New Hamburg Presbyterian Church, the case against him in Orange county is considered even stronger and he will be tried there first. Much of the evidence which District Attorney Hirschberg of Orange county has against Worthington was gathered by the Dutchess county district attorney and his assistant, Edward K. Haas.

Worthington's career as disclosed by the investigation made by the Rev. Alexander Allison, D. D., pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Cold Spring and moderator of the Presbytery, assisted by the Rev. J. Scott King of Little Britain, was a most startling tale of swindle, illegal marriages and broken marriage vows, coupled with years of imprisonment, and a pretended regeneration ending in a pastorate in the Presbyterian Church. During his career Worthington travelled almost the length and breadth of the United States, visited Europe, and fled for security to the Antipodes. His chief money-making scheme seemed to be the securing from the women he married of all their money and then a flight and the assumption of another alias. There were 11 aliases in all and at least nine wives of record in the commission's findings.

FOR YOUNG FOLKS

Sleepy Time Story About a Land Where Skating is the Custom.

OLD AND YOUNG GO ON STEEL.

Little People of Holland Glide to School in Winter Over the Frozen Surface of the Canals—How These Waterways Came to Be Built—Leapfrog.

Well, said Uncle Ben to little Ned and Polly Ann, I suppose you had fine sport on your skates today. So I am going to tell you about a country where EVERYBODY SKATES.

Doubtless you think it would be very nice if you could put on your skates whenever you had to go anywhere and skate off instead of just crawling along in overshoes.

If you lived across the ocean in the little country named Holland, the land of the Dutch, that is what you could do.

Holland is cut up by canals. Once the country was nearly all swamp or water. But the people built great walls of earth to keep the sea from coming in on the land where it was very low. Where it was very swampy or wet they dug long ditches, and they walled these up and thus formed the canals. This left the land nice and dry so that they could build houses and sow crops of vegetables and grain and plant orchards upon it.

Their canals and sea walls are carefully watched so that the sea may not leak in or the canals get filled up again with sand. In summer the people travel up and down these little canals in boats on their way to and from market. Horses, sometimes dogs, walking at the side, drag the boats.

In winter, though, it is very cold, and all the canals are frozen over. The little boys and girls of Holland get out their skates, tie their woolen mufflers carefully over their caps and ears and around their necks and go skating off to school hand in hand. My, how those little Dutch boys and girls can skate! They learn to skate as soon as they can toddle.

But skates are still more useful in Holland. When in the winter the little Dutch children's fathers or mothers wish to go to market with a basket of eggs or butter they get on their skates and, balancing the baskets on their heads, go skimming off to town as lightly as birds.

Every one skates in Holland. In winter it is the best way to get about. Horses and wagons are dear, and the people are too thrifty to spend a penny that they can help.

Their outdoor life makes them strong and rosy. They wear queer old fashioned clothes, such as one sees in pictures of long ago. They have wooden shoes on their feet, and the women wear quaint white caps.

All over Holland you will see windmills. The clever Hollanders have harnessed the wind to do their work. Giant-like windmills help them pump the water out of the marshes. These are called dikes.

"Huckle Buckle Beansstalk."

One of the old games, called "huckle buckle beansstalk," is played as follows: The company goes out of the room while one who remains makes disposition of some small object, such as a coin. Let us say this coin is a dime. Well, the rule is that the coin shall not be hidden, but shall be placed within view, but not more than that a dime is a small object, of course, and there are plenty of ways of making it hard to see. Now, the person who first sees the dime makes no remark whatever, but quietly takes a seat. Next likewise. Next, ditto. And so it goes until only one person remains up and hunting. Naturally this person who cannot see what every one else sees is very much laughed at.

An Ever Popular Sport.

HOW TO REMOVE STAINS FROM CLOTHES

Turpentine is used to remove paint stains. Apply the turpentine with a piece of rag, and if the stain is obstinate use a little ammonia as well.

Paraffin is also used for the removal of paint stains. Dip the stain into the paraffin, rub between the fingers and then wash thoroughly with soap and water.

Ammonia will be found excellent for renovating and removing stains from a blue serge dress. Buy a few cents' worth of ammonia and dissolve it in a wine bottle of hot water. Place the garment flat upon the table and thoroughly brush it until it is free from dust. Now proceed to rub it well over with a cloth soaked in ammonia water, taking care that every little stain is thoroughly rubbed. Repeat the rubbing process if necessary. Hang the skirt out on a line in the air till dry and press on the wrong side with hot irons and a damp cloth.

A very simple and effective method of removing the grease stains is the following: Place the stained part of the material between two sheets of blotting paper. Press with a hot iron until the grease mark is seen on the blotting paper. Now remove the paper so that a fresh piece covers the stain and press again. Repeat the process till the stain disappears.

Gasoline is splendid for cleaning a white silk collar, but care must be exercised in using it, as it is highly inflammable. Dip a piece of soft material into the gasoline and then rub the stained part well. Turn the cloth as soon as it becomes dirty.

USE FOR SPOILED FILMS.

How to Stencil With Them in an Ingenious Way.

Have you ever made a stencil? It is a simple feat if a few rules are kept in mind.

In choosing a stencil design for decorating curtains, furniture or draperies of any sort, posters for church entertainments, business signs, etc., select a design that is simple something that will look well because of its effective outline and with few details. Butterflies with a few markings make effective stencils, flowers with petals and centers separated or solid little animal figures. Draw your design on ordinary paper, place the film over it, rough side down and with a sharp knife cut out the design from the film, following faithfully the copy underneath. It would be well to lay the design on a dark board so that it will show up underneath the film.

Where you want to have white lines the film is left. All the space out of which the film is cut is to be filled in with color.

When you have finished cutting out the design lay the film over the place to be marked, in exactly the right place, and use your oil colors to fill in the spaces. It is well to put blotting under the goods to prevent the paint from spreading where it should not. You now see that the places where you have left the film are white and make an effective contrast to the filled in colored portion.

How to Wax a Floor That Has Been Already Stained.

Waxing floors that have already been stained or unbleached is very simple. The materials needed are a quantity of cotton waste, turpentine for cleansing the floor, a heavy weighted brush for polishing—and this should be used on the floor before the wax is applied as well as after it—and a can of wax in either solid or liquid form. The liquid wax is a bit easier to apply, but both give the same luster. The greatest difference is that the floor on which the solid wax is used is much less slippery than that on which the liquid is spread. A daily dusting of such floors with a stiff brown covered with a woolen cloth will keep them bright and clean under ordinary conditions.

How to Soothe Tired, Aching Feet After Hard Work.

After a hard day's work or shopping one's feet often burn, swell and otherwise distress one. The following remedy is offered by a trained nurse: Add a heaping tablespoonful of baking soda to a pint of common bran, put in a basin and dampen with sufficient warm water to make a thin paste. Immerse the feet in this for ten or fifteen minutes and the relief will be felt immediately. Wipe feet dry and rub well with witch hazel.

How to Clean Tapestries Without Injury to the Fabric.

Four boiling water over a handful of bran. Let it stand until tepid and then plunge the tapestries into it. Use no soap and do not rub, but just shake the goods up and down in the liquid. Wring them out, rinse well in tepid water and hang out in the wind. When dry shake well to remove the bran.

How to Clean the Oven Without Much Drudgery.

If the inside of the oven grows rusty, looking rusty a little oil on a cloth and thoroughly wipe out the oven walls and racks while the oven is yet warm. This will not affect the flavor of things cooked in the oven.

STORY OF RUBBER.

The Romance of This Now Highly Prized Material.

WAS OF LITTLE USE AT FIRST.

Not Until the Vulcanizing Process Was Invented Did Its Vast Possibilities Become Apparent—How the Amazon Monopoly Was Broken.

The average man believes that rubber is rubber, just as silver is silver and ivory is ivory; but, as a matter of fact, the different kinds of rubber run into the hundreds. If you were to take up one of the commercial dailies which devote their columns to the news of the different industries you would find prices quoted on thirty or forty different sorts of rubber. Some are called after their geographical location, some take their name from the method of preparation, and others have names derived from their form.

Originally all rubber came from the valley of the Amazon. When it was first discovered no one knows. At any rate, when the first white men, following along after Columbus, visited South America they found the Indians playing with balls made from the exudation of the bark of a certain tree, and these balls differed from any the Europeans had ever seen, for they bounced and rebounded and were full of life. But that was not the only use the Indians put this milk of the tree to. They smeared it on their blankets to make them waterproof.

Still, 200 years and more went by, and while many wise men believed the elastic, cohesive, impermeable substance ought to be full of usefulness, nobody found any way to use it to any advantage—it was so brittle in cold weather and so disposed to get soft in hot weather. But in the fullness of time a Connecticut Yankee started to puzzle it out. It took him the better part of ten years, but he did it and in 1830 gave the world his vulcanization process, which is in use today.

Up to that time rubber was so cheap that ships from South America sometimes used it as ballast, taking their chances of selling it for what they could get in some American port. With the discovery of the vulcanizing process rubber took on a new hue and a new value, and the tropics were searched for it everywhere. It was found in the vines of Africa and gutter percha, a sort of first cousin to rubber, was found in Borneo, and some years ago a large volume of rubber was found in the guayule shrubs of Mexico.

As rubber grew in value the chemists fell to work and devised ways of recovering it from old shoes and hose and other articles into which it entered and thus "reclaimed rubber" soon came to equal the new rubber in volume, and all these varieties found some legitimate use. Gutta percha makes unapproachable insulation for ocean cables. Balata, which comes from the Guianas, is famous for belting, and even "reclaimed rubber," taken from junk heaps, serves perfectly.

For many years the best rubber was that which came from the banks of the Amazon. The people of that country enjoyed a practical monopoly and determined to keep it. Not a rubber seed would they let get out of the country, under heavy penalties. But from time immemorial the fear of punishment has given way before the lure of shining gold and in 1876 by means of ingenious Englishmen sailed out of the Amazon with 70,000 rubber seeds, and that was the start of the great rubber plantations of Ceylon and the Malay peninsula.

The beginning was slow. It was twenty-nine years after these seeds left the Amazon before the first plantation rubber was ready for the market, and then the total was only 145 tons. That was in 1905. But since then the production of plantation rubber has grown enormously, until now it is about 100,000 tons.

Various rubbers can be used for various purposes. For some purposes a lifeless rubber will answer well enough, while for other purposes the only rubber that will adequately serve is the one that has life and resiliency and toughness. There are numerous rubber articles of commerce where resiliency and wear combined are necessary and where cheaper grades or too large a proportion of "reclaimed rubber" is the poorest sort of economy.—Hartford Times.

GEN. VON FALKENHAYN. LATEST PHOTOGRAPH OF VON FALKENHAYN, NOW IN GREECE.

General von Falkenhayn. This is the latest photograph of General von Falkenhayn, the man who, with General von Mackensen, conquered Rumania. The picture was made recently somewhere in Rumania, soon after the capture of Bucharest. General von Falkenhayn is now in Greece, having made the trip by submarine. Allied military critics consider Falkenhayn's presence there significant of some sort of a move against General Sarrajl's Salonika army. While the Allies control practically all of Greece some of the border towns are held by the Bulgarians and Germans. It is in one of these towns that von Falkenhayn has put in an appearance.

FASHIONS FIFTY YEARS AGO.

When Caps and Aprons Were Worn Even With Evening Gowns.

Fifty years or more ago the apron and the breakfast cap were the pride and joy of every matron, for they were her sign and symbol. The cap of that time was an elaborate and dainty affair. It was worn with the house dress and often much trimmed, throughout the afternoon and evening. Aprons, evidently an important feature of every woman's wardrobe in those days, were decidedly fancy, and usefulness was not a strong point in their construction.

According to an old copy of Godey's Lady's Book, aprons were made of such materials as black silk and satin and were trimmed with lace and velvet, with graduated ruffles of the silk. Often these ruffles were scalloped. They were also cut in strange shapes, and a final touch was added by sewing on lace pockets and a few bows. The same old fashioned book in "Chit-chat on the Fashions for November" says:

"Aprons, or simulated aprons, are the folly of the day. They are likely to have as popular a reign as in the time of Queen Charlotte, when Beau Brummel deposed them from their high estate by deliberately before all the people assembled taking off the apron of a duchess and flinging it behind one of the seats at a ball given at the assembly rooms at Bath. Aprons were made then, as now, of costliest lace, and enormous sums were spent upon this article of dress. The latest novelty is a depth of silk not more than twelve inches to which is added a flounce of lace equally wide, but narrowed at the sides. Of course this style will in time give way to large aprons. What is useful generally becomes popular and lasts for a considerable time."—Christian Science Monitor.

Remade.

"But I haven't heard him refer to that fact lately."

"No. Since his daughters grew up they've entirely remade him. The job he did was far from satisfactory to the experts."—Detroit Free Press.

UNDER THE CAPITOL DOME.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Admiral William S. Benson, Chief of Naval Operations, is expected to succeed George Dewey, Admiral of the Navy, as ranking naval officer and as president of the General Board of the Navy. The Bureau of Operations was created by Congress with the purpose in mind of having the Chief of Naval Operations serve as a sort of connecting link between the general board in its advisory capacity and the navy department in its executive capacity. The Chief of Operations was supposed to see that the recommendations of the general board were put into practice by the navy. Therefore the Chief of Operations was made an ex-officio member of the general board, with the idea that on Admiral Dewey's death he would succeed to the presidency.

MASONS ARE NOT ASHAMED OF GOD

Dearest Lodge, No. 343. Delegation Reconciliated themselves at Tabernacle—Services Tonight and Sunday—502 Have Reconciliated themselves.

That the members of Roundout Lodge, No. 343, F. & A. M., are not ashamed to publicly reconcile themselves in the service of God was shown Friday evening at the Delaware Avenue Tabernacle, when at the close of the service the delegation from that lodge came forward when the invitation was extended by Evangelist L. K. Peacock, including the Masonic delegation, eighty-two came forward at the close making a total of 502 who have publicly reconciliated themselves to God so far during the campaign.

Is it True? Evangelist Peacock took his text from first John 4:15: "Whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him and he in God," and in opening he asked a few pertinent questions.

Is it true that some people are ashamed to own Jesus Christ as the Son of God? Is it true that members of the church are afraid to reconcile themselves to God?

Would be Surprised. I believe a great many people in the world are ashamed of Jesus and His gospel. You would really be surprised if you knew how many people are not willing to let people know they are Christians. You would be surprised if you knew how many church members are going about in the world and serving God secretly, ashamed to let people know they believe in God.

The people who are ashamed to own the Lord have no assurance of God's protection. They are not getting up to God or God with them. It's Up to You.

If you refuse to accept Jesus Christ and confess him you will be lost. Christ is the way, the truth and the light, and it is only through Him we are saved.

The Trouble With Us. The trouble with many of us is we want to frame up our way to be saved. God has pointed out in His Word the way in which we must be saved and it says we must confess Jesus publicly.

God sent Christ into the world for a purpose. The Bible states that Christ came into the world to save those who believe in Him. If we do not believe in Christ as the Son of God we are condemned already. The Bible says Christ came to "lift people up to a higher and nobler plane of life."

Has it Occurred to You? Some people refuse to be honest with God, because they are dishonest with themselves. We are indebted to God for everything, for the food we eat, for the clothes we wear, for every good thing we enjoy in the world.

Folks has it ever occurred to you that we are all indebted to God by sin? Has it ever occurred to you what could happen if He should "forget" Christ came into the world to take our sins upon Himself, that through Him we might be saved.

Don't Turn God Down. Christ came into the world to save us but He can't save us if we don't permit Him. If we turn God down here we turn ourselves down in the hereafter.

Service Tonight. There will be services tonight at the tabernacle and Evangelist Peacock will preach. Everyone is welcome.

Mothers' Service. Sunday morning the evangelist will preach a sermon to mothers, and every one who attends the service is urged to wear a white flower or white ribbon in honor of their mother. The choir will sing appropriate songs.

For Men Only. A service for men only will be held at 2:30 in the tabernacle at which time the evangelist will speak on "Booze, or Hot Shot for the Major Bunch." All men in the city are invited.

For Women Only. At the same hour a service for women only will be held in the Wurts Street Baptist Church which will be addressed by Miss Spear, of the evangelistic party. This service is free to all women and they are cordially invited to attend.

Sunday Evening for All. The services Sunday evening in the tabernacle are for every person, and everyone is invited to attend.

No Monday Services. No services of any kind will be held Monday in the tabernacle.

THE VLY. The Vly. Jan. 20.—Sunday school at 10 o'clock and church services at 11 o'clock.

$11,000 BISHOP VERDICT UPHOLD

The famous case of Emma Bishop, as administratrix of the estate of Arthur Bishop, respondent, against the Kingston Gas & Electric Company, appellant, was unanimously affirmed by the appellate division of the supreme court for the Second department in Brooklyn on Friday.

The action was brought by Mrs. Bishop to recover damages for the death of her husband, who was employed as a lineman and lamp trimmer by the Kingston Gas & Electric Company, and who met death while attending to his duties on May 21, 1908.

Bishop at the time of his death was trimming a lamp on Grand street near the Ulster & Delaware railroad crossing. The line was supposed to be "dead" during the day, but his death disclosed the fact that it was carrying a strong current.

Mrs. Bishop sued the Gas & Electric Company through Alfred D. Van Buren, her attorney, and the case was brought on for trial before the late Judge Fitch, who dismissed the complaint. Later Judge Hasbrouck was substituted as attorney for Mr. Van Buren and secured an order for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence. His election as a justice of the supreme court prevented him from continuing the case and Cunningham & Traver of this city were substituted as Mrs. Bishop's attorneys and tried the case for her before Judge Cochrane, and a jury in the city in March, 1915. The jury rendered a verdict in Mrs. Bishop's favor for $15,000.

Judge Cochrane took under advisement a motion to set aside the verdict and some time afterward handed down a decision reducing the verdict to $11,000. From the judgment and order denying a new trial the Gas & Electric Company appealed to the appellate division of the supreme court, Third department.

After the appeal was taken, Judge Cochrane was appointed a member of the appellate division for the Third department, which disqualified him from passing on the case. Judge Howard, who had granted the motion for a new trial on the ground of newly discovered evidence, thereby passing on some phases of the case, was also a member of the appellate division, and on the ground that both Judge Cochrane and Judge Howard were prevented from hearing the case on appeal, the Gas & Electric Company procured an order from the appellate division of the Third department transferring the case to the appellate division of the Second department, sitting in Brooklyn.

None of whose members had in any way passed on any phase of the case. The case on appeal was argued before the appellate division of the Second department in Brooklyn some time ago by Howard Chipp, of counsel for Mrs. Bishop, and by Judge Clearwater, who had represented the Gas & Electric Company throughout the litigation.

That court on Friday handed down a decision unanimously affirming the judgment and order so far as appealed from, with costs. The opinion is per curiam.

Few cases in Ulster county in recent years have been more closely contested or created more interest than the Bishop case. The second trial of which was made memorable by the quantity of expert testimony given by electrical experts employed by both litigants.

Set Verdict Aside.

This morning Recorder Lang, as acting city judge, set aside the verdict of the jury in the case of the New York Central Railroad against Richard Spellman to recover a balance on freight shipments amounting to $11,000. This case was recently tried before a jury in city court and the jury brought in a verdict of no cause of action. Amos Van Ethen appeared for the railroad and Andrew J. Cook for Mr. Spellman. The verdict is set aside on the grounds that the verdict was contrary to the evidence and the law.

Girls Win From Boys.

The boys' team of No. 6 grammar school were defeated 27 to 15 in a game of basketball at the Holy Cross parish of Wednesday afternoon, when they met the "D" D'Inceup, a girls' team. The boys had agreed to let the girls get the better of them in the first part of the game to give them encouragement, fully intending to come back gloriously in the second half. However, they were unable to carry out their intentions.

A welcome is extended to everybody to attend the service that afternoon.

Dance Winds up Term.

The first term of the school year, which ended Friday, was given the glad hand toward the exit portal by the high school student body in the afternoon when its passing was duly celebrated by a joyous dance in the gymnasium, the school orchestra furnishing the music. Until late in the afternoon they danced merrily to the music of the famous regents' examinations due next week.
